

Italy: Buma di Paolo Buscema v Data Bridge, Supreme Court of Cassation of Italy, 13524/2014, 13 June 2014

Kluwer Copyright Blog
February 5, 2015

Elisabetta Ferraro (Trevisan & Cuonzo)

Please refer to this post as: Elisabetta Ferraro, 'Italy: Buma di Paolo Buscema v Data Bridge, Supreme Court of Cassation of Italy, 13524/2014, 13 June 2014', Kluwer Copyright Blog, February 5 2015, <http://copyrightblog.kluweriplaw.com/2015/02/05/italy-buma-di-paolo-buscema-v-data-bridge-supreme-court-of-cassation-of-italy-135242014-13-june-2014/>

The Italian Supreme Court confirmed that software which derives from a pre-existing computer program is eligible for copyright protection provided it demonstrates a minimal level of originality, even if it reproduces the main structure of the pre-existing program.

A full summary of this case has been published on Kluwer IP Law