

Poland: Plagiarism, Supreme Court of Poland, V CSK 125/14, 23 January 2015

Kluwer Copyright Blog
September 21, 2015

Marcin Balicki

Please refer to this post as: Marcin Balicki, 'Poland: Plagiarism, Supreme Court of Poland, V CSK 125/14, 23 January 2015', Kluwer Copyright Blog, September 21 2015, <http://copyrightblog.kluweriplaw.com/2015/09/21/poland-plagiarism-supreme-court-of-poland-v-csk-12514-23-january-2015/>

---

The Polish Supreme Court held that the use of elements of a work of authorship, which are widely known and available (in the public domain), in another work in which those elements were combined in a different way, constitutes an expression of individual creative thought, and cannot therefore be regarded as an infringement of copyright in the first work (plagiarism).

A full summary of this case has been published on Kluwer IP Law