CJEU: ITV v TVCatchup, Court of Justice of the European Communities, C-275/15, 1 March 2017

Sophia Urlich (Institute for Information Law (IViR)) · Thursday, July 13th, 2017

A full summary of this case has been published on Kluwer IP Law and the case has been discussed on the Kluwer Copyright Blog here.

The CJEU held that Article 9, particularly the concept of ‘access to cable of broadcasting services’, must be interpreted as not covering or permitting national legislation which provides that copyright is not infringed in the case of the immediate retransmission by cable of works broadcast on television channels subject to public service obligations.

If a national court is in doubt about the interpretation or validity of an EU law, it can ask the Court for clarification. The same mechanism can be used to determine whether a national law or practice is compatible with EU law. The CJEU also resolves legal disputes between national governments and EU institutions, and can take action against EU institutions on behalf of individuals, companies or organisations.”>CJEU, European Union, Infringement, Liability
