The American University Washington College of Law Program on Information Justice and Intellectual Property (PIJIP), American University International Law Review (AUILR), and the University of Amsterdam Institute for Information Law (IViR) are inviting papers for a Symposium on the Right to Research in International Copyright Law on April 21-22, 2022.

We are tentatively planning to have this meeting in-person at American University Washington College of Law, in Washington D.C., depending on health advisories, and will also have remote participation options.

Completed papers on international law topics (i.e. including evaluation of international treaty or customary law) which meet the AUILR guidelines (see link below) will be considered for publication in a Fall 2022 symposium issue of the AUILR.

We will also host works-in-progress workshops to give feedback on projects related to the right to research in copyright theme that may not be ready to publish or that venture beyond the international law focus of AUILR.

Limited travel funding will be available for participants.
